GEF PRIVATE SECTOR ENGAGEMENT ANNUAL REPORT

1. The GEF Private Sector Engagement Strategy<sup>1</sup> (PSES) (GEF/C.59/07/Rev.01) was approved at the 59th GEF Council Meeting. The PSES includes the reporting framework which specifies the metrics to be used for the purpose of annual reporting to the GEF Council to assess the effectiveness of private sector engagement:

- (a) The number of companies formally engaged in GEF activities (in the process of design, planning meetings, information shared, implementation, technical assistance etc., according to the modality);
- (b) A classification of companies based on the GICS industry code at the level of the industry sector;
- (c) An assessment of the geographies where the private sector engagement has been most effective and least successful;
- (d) The number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged, their geographic coverage and share of the global market; and
- (e) An appendix of all companies contacted during the period.

2. This annual report covers all projects from GEF-7 cycle that have reached CEO endorsement, including from the SCCF/LDCF, the SGP, MSPs and the GEF Trust Fund. This report does not include the NGI window which is covered in a separate report. The total number of projects assessed is 204.

3. Private sector entities were classified according to the 11 sector classifications of the Global Industry Classification Standard Methodology (GICS):

1. Energy
2. Materials
3. Industrials
4. Consumer Discretionary
5. Consumer Staples
6. Health Care
7. Financials
8. Information Technology
9. Communication Services
10. Utilities
11. Real Estate

4. Each private sector entity was further classified using a typology according to scale, assets, number of employees and geography. For consistency with IEO Evaluations, the same classifications for private sector entities were adopted, with the addition of two classifications to differentiate between small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) using the IFC definitions<sup>2</sup>:

- (a) Small enterprises
- (b) Medium-sized enterprises
- (c) Cooperatives
- (d) National corporations
- (e) State-owned / partially state-owned corporations
- (f) National trade and professional organizations
- (g) National chambers of commerce and industry
- (h) Multinational corporations
- (i) Private Foundations

5. The main findings of the report are:

- (a) The total number of private sector entities engaged in GEF-7 projects at the CEO endorsement stage is 991 (full list in Appendix A)
- (b) The total amount of private sector co-finance is $832,852,952 across the 204 projects
- (c) The modal private sector organization classification is multinational corporations
- (d) The modal GICS industry sector is consumer staples

Table 1 below shows the distribution of the 991 private sector entities according to typology:

Organization Classification	Number
Multinational corporations	325
National corporations	262
National trade and professional organizations	151
Medium sized enterprises	73
Cooperatives	57
Small-scale enterprises	45
State-owned / partially state-owned corporations	35
National chambers of commerce and industry	33
Private Foundations	10

6. Private sector engagement is evident in 100 percent of the 204 projects at the CEO endorsement stage which compares favorably to the 18 percent (303 projects) of the 1,711 GEF-supported projects with terminal evaluations that included activities relevant to the private sector documented in OPS7.

7. A deeper analysis of the FOLUR IP (21 child projects at the CEO endorsement stage) shows:

- (a) Extensive value chain approaches across all of the major commodities that engage brands, producers, retailers, the financial sector and traders
- (b) Almost every country project has a working partnership with a global multi-stakeholder platform, often more than one, with the most frequently cited being IDH, the Good Growth Partnership (GGP), Sustainable Rice Landscapes Initiative (SRLI), World Cocoa Foundation’s Cocoa Forests Initiative (CFI) and the WBCSD’s Soft Commodities Forum (SCF)
- (c) Certification schemes were also strongly represented across all of the commodity value chains
- (d) There were some sectors and partners that were less commonly represented such as technology providers, retailers, the insurance sector and the large agricultural input companies which have a large reach and capacity in the farming target markets
- (e) Landscape actors in resources and energy that have close links with land and water use, impacts and dependencies on natural capital, net-zero and nature positive commitments are also largely absent from projects in this Impact Program

- (f) The largest group of value chain actors were the major global commodity traders representing an essential link between demand in major markets and sustainable supply and a leverage point for sustainable standards and sustainability linked financial products such as loans (SLLs) and green bonds
- (g) The GEF has a number of NGI investments that directly target this sector and group of investors (Agri 3, Livelihoods Fund, &Green, LDN Fund) and should be a continued focus of GEF's engagements into GEF-8 Food Systems Integrated Program

ENGAGEMENT WITH MULTI-STAKEHOLDER PLATFORMS

8. A core element of GEF's PSES is the engagement of multi-stakeholder platforms to provide the scale and resources needed for transformational impact at the system level and beyond the country level projects. This approach to engaging the private sector is captured in the regional APAC marine plastics project Promoting Resource Efficiency and Circularity to Reduce Plastic Pollution for Asia and the Pacific (Project ID 10268):

"The project will contribute towards transformational change by harnessing the private sector as an "agent of scaling," with all three components of the project being interlinked with a view to creating a new generation of investment programs and projects that integrate action on marine plastic and encourage a circular economy."

9. The total number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged in the 204 projects is 68 (Appendix B).

- (a) 44 of the 68 multi-stakeholder platforms are global in nature
- (b) 7 multi-stakeholder platforms are regional (multiple countries)
- (c) 17 multi-stakeholder platforms are engaged in country specific activities

10. The global platforms represented in the project range include those with the largest memberships, revenue and market coverage for any given sector. These include:

- (a) Business for Nature with over 1000 companies and a combined revenue of over $4.7 trillion
- (b) The Taskforce on Nature Related Financial Disclosure (TNFD) with a Taskforce membership of over 35 companies and a Forum membership of over 200 companies comprising the largest financial institutions globally
- (c) World Cocoa Foundation which has a membership representing over 80 percent of the cocoa sector
- (d) IDH which brings together over 600 companies and governments and reaching over 4 million farmers in 30 countries

- (e) The Fashion Pact with over 60+ signatories, stemming across multiple sectors and 14 countries, representing over 200 brands and over 30 percent of the global fashion industry

FINDINGS

11. The specific data points for private sector engagement in GEF project documentation provide a valuable insight into the nature of the private sector engagement, the level of co-financing and other relevant engagement modalities. A more thorough analysis of projects on a case-by-case basis shows that data related to the private sector is often included and dispersed throughout the entirety of the document text and appendices.
12. The GEF Secretariat work with the GEF Agency Private Sector Working Group to better capture all relevant data included in the private sector sections and dedicated fields of the GEF documents without duplication. In GEF project documentation, the inclusion of easy to complete sections dedicated to private sector engagement such as tick boxes and drop-down box selections would enable faster and more accurate data collection, in particular the type of engagement modality, type/structure of the business and key industry sectors represented.
13. The GEF Agency Private Sector Working Group determined that GICS industry codes were not widely used by the Agencies in practice and that other forms of classification of sectors and industries would be more suitable to the GEF. GICS industry sectors in particular can be confusing or may categorize companies in a manner that is not obvious or clear. For example, the energy sector covers companies that operate businesses in the oil and natural gas industry and includes oil and gas exploration and production companies, as well as producers of other consumable fuels like coal and ethanol. The energy sector also includes the related businesses that provide equipment, materials, and services to oil and gas producers. However, it doesn't include any renewable energy companies, which are instead considered utilities in a separate category.
14. The GEF Secretariat may select an alternative classification of companies that is more relevant to the GEF community of practice and provides greater clarity and insight to the types of companies and sectors that are engaged.
15. While there was extensive coverage of the private sector across a range of scales and industries, greater consideration could be made of a broader range of landscape actors such as mining companies, forest industries and utilities that have impacts and dependencies on natural capital and are seeking opportunities to invest in the landscape, including under SDG and Rio Convention targets.
16. Engaging such private sector actors can be a strong support to the overall durability of GEF projects which forms a key part of the GEF vision for successful private sector engagement. This is exemplified in the project example from Zambia:

“One of the greatest potential advantages of working with the private sector is their long-term engagement. It is very difficult to develop self-sustaining community management bodies in five years. The estimated life of their operations (First Quantum Minerals) is for another 17 years, with a high chance that they will provide at least a minimum level of follow-on support to the CFM and sustainable agriculture components – follow-on support that is so crucial to their long-term success.”
