GEF PRIVATE SECTOR ENGAGEMENT ANNUAL REPORT

1. The GEF Private Sector Engagement Strategy<sup>1</sup> (PSES) (GEF/C.59/07/Rev.01) was approved at the 59th GEF Council Meeting. The PSES includes the reporting framework which specifies the metrics to be used for the purpose of annual reporting to the GEF Council to assess the effectiveness of private sector engagement:

- (a) The number of companies formally engaged in GEF activities (in the process of design, planning meetings, information shared, implementation, technical assistance etc., according to the modality);
- (b) A classification of companies based on the GICS industry code at the level of the industry sector;
- (c) An assessment of the geographies where the private sector engagement has been most effective and least successful;
- (d) The number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged, their geographic coverage and share of the global market; and
- (e) An appendix of all companies contacted during the period.

2. This annual report covers all projects from GEF-7 cycle from the period October 2021 – October 22, that have reached CEO endorsement, including from the SCCF/LDCF, the SGP, MSPs and the GEF Trust Fund. This report does not include the NGI window which is covered in a separate report. The total number of projects assessed is 254.

3. Private sector entities were classified according to the 11 sector classifications of the Global Industry Classification Standard Methodology (GICS):

- 1. Energy
- 2. Materials
- 3. Industrials
- 4. Consumer Discretionary
- 5. Consumer Staples
- 6. Health Care
- 7. Financials
- 8. Information Technology
- 9. Communication Services
- 10. Utilities
- 11. Real Estate

4. Each private sector entity was further classified using a typology according to scale, assets, number of employees and geography. For consistency with IEO Evaluations, the same

6. Private sector engagement is evident in over 99 percent of the 254 projects at the CEO endorsement stage which compares favorably to the 18 percent (303 projects) of the 1,711 GEF-supported projects with terminal evaluations that included activities relevant to the private sector documented in OPS7.

ENGAGEMENT WITH MULTI-STAKEHOLDER PLATFORMS

7. A core element of GEF's PSES is the engagement of multi-stakeholder platforms to provide the scale and resources needed for transformational impact at the system level and beyond the country level projects.

8. The total number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged in the 254 projects is 36 (Appendix B).

- (a) 22 of the 36 multi-stakeholder platforms are global in nature
- (b) 1 multi-stakeholder platforms is regional (multiple countries in Southern Africa)
- (c) 13 multi-stakeholder platforms are engaged in country specific activities

9. The global platforms represented in the project range include those with the largest memberships, revenue and market coverage for any given sector. These include:

- (a) Business for Nature with over 1000 companies and a combined revenue of over $4.7 trillion
- (b) The Taskforce on Nature Related Financial Disclosure (TNFD) with a Taskforce membership of over 35 companies and a Forum membership of over 200 companies comprising the largest financial institutions globally

- (c) World Cocoa Foundation which has a membership representing over 80 percent of the cocoa sector
- (d) IDH which brings together over 600 companies and governments and reaching over 4 million farmers in 30 countries
- (e) The Fashion Pact with over 60+ signatories, stemming across multiple sectors and 14 countries, representing over 200 brands and over 30 percent of the global fashion industry
- (f) The World Business Council for Sustainable Development, with over 200 members, USD 18.5 trillion in combined revenues and over 19 million employees. The WBCSD is engaged across a number of GEF's key Impact Programs, notably the FOLUR IP, the Sustainable Cities IP (Urban Shift), and in the NGI program.

FINDINGS

10. Working through multi-stakeholder platforms and industry associations is delivering the highest level of co-financing (from all sources) in the form of grants and direct financial support in the GEF portfolio. This includes:

- a) The International Sustainable Seafood Industry Association allocation of USD 60 million to support sustainable tuna fishing activities
- b) The GEF GOLD program in which members have allocated over USD 50 million across six countries to support ASGM value chain sustainability
- c) The World Cocoa Foundation with an allocation of USD 50 million through its Cocoa Forests Initiative in Cote D'Ivoire
- d) China Association of Medical Devices Industry and members who contributed a mix of grant and in-kind support of 112,000,000 to phase out mercury in medical devices

11. There were a large number (n=33) of women's private sector networks, cooperatives and associations engaged in GEF projects during the reporting period. There was representation from diverse range of organizations and geographies, including:

- a) Association "Women of the Agricultural Sector" of Uzbekistan
- b) Association of Women Extractivists of Araguari, Brazil
- c) Bahamas Network of Rural Women Producers (BAHNROP)
- d) Kyoyima Omuto Akiryanga Akuze Artisanal Women Group, Uganda
- e) Kenya Women MicroFinance Bank
- f) Cambodia Women Entrepreneur Association
- g) The Black Business Women's Association, South Africa

h) Women's Energy Club of Ukraine

The engagement of women through women's businesses and private sector networks is a valuable contribution in the GEF's goals for gender equity and the active inclusion of women through the GEF portfolio.

The GEF Secretariat recommends adding a category of women's private sector entities to the annual reporting framework.

12. Accessing the data to assess private sector engagement remains a challenge during the GEF-7 reporting period. During the GEF-8 cycle, the GEF Secretariat will review and streamline project documentation that will provide opportunities for more consistently and accurately account for activities that engage the private sector, in particular the role that the private sector is expected to play.

13. The GEF Secretariat work with the GEF Agency Private Sector Working Group to better capture all relevant data included in the private sector sections and dedicated fields of the GEF documents without duplication. In GEF project documentation, the inclusion of easy to complete sections dedicated to private sector engagement such as tick boxes and drop-down box selections would enable faster and more accurate data collection, in particular the type of engagement modality, type/structure of the business and key industry sectors represented.

14. There are some private sector actors that are not well represented in the GEF portfolio and that could add significantly to project execution, innovation, new business models, connectivity to markets and the delivery of GEBs. These gaps in private sector engagement include:

- a) Technology companies, which are most present in wildlife and conservation projects in the GEF portfolio, but largely absent in the larger Impact Programs
- b) The insurance sector, especially their ability to support climate change adaptation measures and create new and innovative models that support adaptation goals
- c) Retailers (online and physical) which have the capacity to reach consumers at scale and promote the adoption of sustainable practices and purchases

15. There has been no noticeable change in this reporting period to the lack of landscape actors such as mining companies, forest industries and utilities that have impacts and dependencies on natural capital and are seeking opportunities to invest in the landscape, including under SDG and Rio Convention targets.

16. GEF-8s Integrated Programs offer the private sector, both through the multi-stakeholder platforms and bilateral engagement, enhanced opportunities to actively contribute to systemic transformations through the IPs. Each IP has a dedicated section for private sector engagement and the integrated approaches are more likely to attract higher levels of investment and broader sectoral interest as businesses seek to deliver the results against their nature and climate commitments.
